Texe Marrs Discusses Jewish Bloodlines

• Inspirational evangelist's studies on Khazarian DNA undermine Zionist claim on Holy Land

By Michael Collins Piper

*T*exe Marrs is down-to-earth, plain-spoken — and no-holds barred. He minces no words in his pursuit of the truth. And AFP has been proud, over the past several years, to have had a good working relationship with Marrs and his Power of Prophecy ministry, represented by the success of the AFP Veterans Day Free Speech Conference in Austin (where Marrs is based) over Veterans Day weekend.

One of the most dynamic and articulate speakers being heard broadcasting over the Internet today — check out his website at www.powerofprophecy. com — Marrs has also been responsible for producing a remarkable array of books, monographs, CD and DVD presentations, and other materials that have brought a tremendous amount of factual material relating to both history and current events to growing numbers of enthusiastic people all over the world.

A Christian evangelist with a fascinating personal history, including a long career as a U.S. Air Force officer responsible for commanding communications- electronics and engineering units, Marrs was later an assistant professor of aerospace studies teaching American defense policy, strategic weapons systems and related subjects at the University of Texas at Austin.

The author of some 40 books, including a number of international best-sellers translated into multiple foreign languages, Marrs was even one of the first published writers delving into the then-little known topic of robots and robotics.

Today, through his Power of Prophecy Ministry, Marrs has become a widely respected voice for freedom of speech and religion, seeking to counter the New World Order elements that are often the focus of his writing and speaking.

Never one to shy away from controversy, Marrs discussed his new book DNA Science and the Jewish Bloodline at the AFP free speech conference. Marrs's fascinating overview of this explosive topic, explored in his book (which is available from AMERICAN FREE PRESS) electrified the audience at the AFP conference.

In reflecting on his work, Marrs pointed out that although the story of the European tribe of converts to Judaism — known as the Khazars — has become more and more known as the world has focused on the crimes of the occupiers of historical Palestine (who call themselves "Jews"), new research from Jewish and Israeli researchers in the field of DNA has demonstrated, beyond scientific doubt, that those who call themselves Jews are not of the blood lineage of Abraham and the prophets of the Old Testament. Instead they are the descendants of the pagan Khazars of the Caucasus.

The conversion of the Khazars to Judaism in the 8th century, followed two centuries later by their emigration into Eastern Europe, set the stage for many Khazars (now calling themselves "Jews") to ultimately lay claim to Palestine and — in 1948 — they established the state of Israel.

So, in short, those who today dominate the Holy Land — and suppress the rights of the native Christian and Muslim Arabs — have no genetic claim to the land and no connection to historical "Israel."

Most important, above all, is the underlying theme that Marrs seeks to emphasize: that real Christians, devoted to traditional scripture, must come to understand that modern Israel is not the Biblical Israel and, instead, stands as a force representing the evil of the New World Order and the coming of the anti-Christ.
